THE AVESSIUS CONSTELLATION

Once upon a time there was a bloody war between the Greeks and the Persians. The mighty god Zeus couldn't protect Greeks against powerful Persians, and the Greeks were almost defeated when a fire ball appeared on the sky. All soldiers stopped in astonishment, they thought that the end of the world was coming. But then a bird dragon appeared from fire flames. It was just a good bird which took care of good people. The bird flew over them and attacked Persians who ran away into Africa. After victory the Greeks highly praised the Dragon Bird and Zeus invited him into his palace where he named him Avessius what meant to be the almighty bird. He also gave him a gift – the Avessius Constellation. Avessius who was very proud of his deed waited impatiently for the first night glimpse of his Constellation. But instead clear sky a storm was coming and black clouds were hiding stars. Only his Constellation was still gleaming through black sky. After a week long life on the sky Avessius felt a strong pain near his heart. He knew at once that something got wrong and he noticed that there was a new war between the Greeks and the Persians. He flew to the ground started attacking the Persians, who were prepared to catch him into a net and took him into Persia. They slaughtered him by a knife through his heart. As his soul died also his constellation disappeared.
